

John Kibble

Vice President and General Manager
South America

Vice President, Global Operations

Tenneco Clean Air

John Kibble is vice president and general manager, South America, responsible for the leading the sales, operations and manufacturing for the Clean Air division in the region. He also serves as vice president, global operations, with oversight of Tenneco's Clean Air facilities throughout the world, including manufacturing, quality, process design and continuous improvement activities.

Kibble is a seasoned operations leader with a nearly 20-year tenure at Tenneco and international experience, having lived in UK, Germany, Czech Republic, China and now Brazil.

Prior to his current roles, he served as vice president, operations for Tenneco's Asia Pacific region. Before that, he held a number of operational management positions in China, Europe and other key regions for Tenneco's exhaust business.

Kibble originally qualified as a mechanical engineer in the UK.